Aboriginal Art Symbolism

A form of australian indegenous art, Aboriginal paintings can be found in caves up to 30,000 years old.

Dreamtime was the artists perception of the beginning of the world. Paintings can be used as a guide to ancient life, animals and beliefs. Aborigines used symbols as a means to communicate instead of a written language.

Selling the art helps keep the culture alive and is the most common art found in many Australian galleries, this helps to financially support the Aborigines.

Dreamtime stories are passed through generations through the art and symbols.

Further info: https://www.ancient-symbols.com/
ART AND NATURE PROGRAMME

Aboriginal Art Symbolism

Women's ceremony
Water Dreaming
Dot painting

Fire Dreaming
Meeting place
The Sun

Snake
Bush Medicine
Star

Snake and Waterholes
Kangaroo
Water

Further info: https://www.ancient-symbols.com/

The Fair Earth Foundation CIO is a UK Registered Charity (Number 1172989) www.fairearthfoundation.org